

OCD Has Many (More) Faces

Charlene Salvador, BBA

Saleha Hansbhai M. Ed.

Erin Nghe, LCSW

Terence Ching, MSocSci, MA

The RE-ADDRESSING Framework

	Charlene Salvador	Saleha Hansbhai	Erin Nghe	Terence Ching
R	Race	Asian		Black	Asian
E	Education	BBA (Bachelors Business Administration) in Marketing, Pace University, NYC	Masters in Education University of Cincinnati Cincinnati, Ohio	MSW, LCSW Clark Atlanta University. Whitney M. Young School of Social Work	MSocSci in Psychology (NUS); MA in Clinical Psychology (Uconn); in Ph.D in Clinical Psychology (UConn)
A	Age & Generational Influences	46 – Generation X	Millennial/Generation Y	Millennial/Generation Y	Millennial/Generation Y
D	Developmental & acquired conditions	None	None	None	None
D	Disabilities	OCD	OCD	None	None
R	Religion	Catholic	Islam	Christian	None
E	Ethnicity	Filipino	Indian	AA, Unknown	Chinese Singaporean
S	Socioeconomic status	Upper Middle Class	Upper-Middle Class	Upper – Middle Class	Upper-middle class
S	Sexual orientation	Straight	Straight	Straight	Gay
I	Indigenous heritage	Non-native	Non-native	unknown, n/a	Non-native
N	National origin	USA born	India	American	Singapore
G	Gender	Cisgender Female	Female	Cisgender female	Cisgender male

Hays, P. A. (2001). Addressing cultural complexities in practice: A framework for clinicians and counselors. Washington, D. C.: American Psychological Association.

Call to Action

- Ask about diversity beyond what's reported in the other talks at this weekend's conference.
- Reach out to IOCDF to inquire about how they will continue the diversity conversation after everyone leaves.
- Reach out to IOCDF to inquire about how you can support their diversity initiatives.
- Attending any support groups? Connect with someone with a diverse ethnic background to share about similar challenges. Recognize the commonalities. Maintain this connection through technology after the conference ends.
- Be committed to diversifying your networks even beyond treatment settings, including, in your work, spiritual communities and in your social network.